a	Quality, appropriateness and accuracy of project Implementation	Excellent use of software engineering principles and models both at higher and lower levels in implementation from design cycle. Documented use of complex features in the language /package which show quantitatively and qualitatively the improvements gained. An excellent fully operating technically outstanding project. Project fulfils functional requirements specification exactly with no limitations or failures of any type	Very well engineered solution, with evidence that the student has used proven method in transforming design into implementation. Appropriate use of facilities to make implementation more efficient or effective. Effective and efficient implementation technically with only minor limitations. Project works well with only some minor functional limitations	Appropriately engineered implementation which follows from design. Language/package facilities exploited to suggest a functional implementation. Project with some limitations, mostly technically sound. Project essentially works but with some severe functional limitations	In sufficient implementation to show competent use of any problemsolving methods. Minimal implementation.
